CROWN CRAFTS BOARD RESPONDS TO THE LATEST DECEPTIVE ASSERTIONS BY THE WYNNEFIELD GROUP

Gonzales, Louisiana — The Crown Crafts, Inc. (NASDAQ-CM: CRWS) Board of Directors today issued a letter to all shareholders in response to the false and misleading statements included in a July 29, 2010 letter to shareholders from the New York-based investment fund Wynnefield Partners Small Cap Value, L.P. and certain of its affiliates (the Wynnefield Group), which has instigated a proxy fight in connection with the election of directors at the Company's annual meeting of shareholders to be held on August 10, 2010. The following is the Crown Crafts Board's letter to shareholders in response to the Wynnefield Group's latest deceptive statements:

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FROM YOUR BOARD OF DIRECTORS

July 30, 2010

Dear Fellow Crown Crafts Shareholders:

In their desperate and reprehensible attempt to win their solely self-serving proxy fight, the Wynnefield Partners Small Cap Value, L.P. and certain of its affiliates (the Wynnefield Group) have previously twisted the facts in many of their communications to shareholders. Now they have stooped so low that they are publishing LIES to attempt to sway the votes of Crown Crafts shareholders.

In a letter to Crown Crafts shareholders dated July 29, 2010, the Wynnefield Group claims that Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer E. Randall Chestnut has a "history of long non-publically explained absences from the Company."

This is an outright LIE, and the Board members signing this letter confirm that Mr. Chestnut does NOT have a history of absences and has NEVER taken a medical leave from the Company. His only serious medical issue was in 2009 when he underwent heart bypass surgery. At that time he was out of the office for only two weeks and worked from home for all but three days. He is in great health and remains totally immersed in running the business.

*916 S. Burnside Avenue * PO Box 1028 * Gonzales, LA 70707-1028 * (225) 647-9100 * Fax (225) 647-9104*

The Wynnefield Group states further that “a Crown Craft Board member has discussed with a Wynnefield principal Mr. Chestnut’s extremely serious health conditions.” The fact is that a conversation took place with Board member Frederick Wasserman — who was handpicked by the Wynnefield Group to serve on the Crown Crafts Board as well as the boards of six other companies in the Wynnefield Group’s portfolio — during which Mr. Wasserman discussed Mr. Chestnut’s surgery in 2009. This conversation took place during a time when the Wynnefield Group was contractually designated as an insider under their standstill agreement with the Company. At no time did Mr. Wasserman imply that Mr. Chestnut had a history of absences for medical or any other reasons. In fact, Nelson Obus, a principal of the Wynnefield Group, e-mailed Mr. Chestnut shortly after his surgery and referred to it as “a little tune-up.”

Commenting on this latest direct affront by the Wynnefield Group, Mr. Chestnut said, “I am deeply insulted by Wynnefield’s outlandish personal attack and totally unprofessional behavior, which has now reached an all-time low.”

The Wynnefield Group further claims it “is concerned that there is no publicly disclosed succession plan to address the possibility of the CEO being unable to carry out his duties or obligations.” In fact, Crown Crafts has a detailed, state-of-the-art, written succession plan in place. Prudently, and in line with long-established corporate governance best practices, no public company board, to our knowledge, discloses its carefully constructed succession plan outside the board room.

This is just the latest in a series of misleading statements by the Wynnefield Group in an increasingly desperate attempt to distort the facts, something they have a track record of doing. For another example, the Wynnefield Group also continues to state that if their slate is voted onto the Board, they will have only two directors representing them, conveniently ignoring that Joseph Kling was also their handpicked director and remains on the Board.

As noted earlier this week by Glass Lewis & Co., a leading independent governance analysis and proxy voting firm, which has issued a report favoring the Board-recommended slate over the Wynnefield Group’s nominees, Crown Crafts has consistently performed better than its peers in several important metrics, including total return to shareholders and return on equity. The Glass Lewis report concludes that the Wynnefield Group “has offered shareholders limited reason to believe that its nominees, with limited industry experience, can develop a pro forma operating structure or plan superior to the one currently employed by management and the board.”

Could it be that the Wynnefield Group is sensing that it lacks support for its baseless criticisms and has decided not to let the facts stand in its way?

We want all of our shareholders to know that this unethical tactic by the Wynnefield Group is DESPICABLE and provides further support for our belief that the Wynnefield Group is interested only in serving their own selfish, short-sighted agenda and will stop at nothing in their deceptive actions to achieve their purpose.

Your vote is very important to us, no matter the size of your holdings. We urge you to vote your shares today IN FAVOR OF YOUR BOARD-SUPPORTED NOMINEES — E. RANDALL CHESTNUT, WILLIAM T.
